I love it so much when I am able to spend time with family and friends and just relax. We had a nice Thanksgiving dinner with many family and friends from out of town. One of the highlights was our time with my Mom and Dad. I don't know why, but I really enjoy spending time with them. We don't really talk much, but when we do, it's really fun. I think that's one of the great things about this time of the year. We all get to spend time with our loved ones and see how they are doing and feel good that we're all happy. "So we can let our love be our guide...and look to others for strength to carry on." Friday, October 19, 2012 Today was a tough day at work. I was tired and not feeling my best. I hope my sweet little girls were good. I love you little ones, and I'm so glad I get to have them in my life. After work, I picked up my youngest and went out to visit my Dad. We had a great time, and I think he enjoyed spending time with us more than he did when we were babies. He's a great story teller, and I love listening to him and laughing. "It's always darkest just before the dawn." This will be the last blog post that I share for a while. I'll have to post more when I get some time. Tuesday, October 16, 2012
